

AFTER THE DAMAGES

International
Summer School

After the Damages is an advanced training project to highlight recent innovations and advancements made in the post-disaster management.

The course will provide the most up-to-date skills to enable participants to play a proactive role in disaster risk management and respond effectively when calamitous events occur.

In these challenging times, as the coronavirus outbreak represents an unprecedented trial on public health around the globe, new leadership practice should draw on wisdom from former experiences while learning, in real time, lessons from today, prioritizing action and thereby better serving the communities.

The After the Damages project offers a two-week high-level training/practice course addressing the participation of public administrations managers, competent government agencies representatives, international organizations, researchers and specialists in the fields of architecture, engineering, and earth science.

The Summer School "After the Damages" is among the three-year high educational projects in the fields of culture, economy and technology. Regional Law n.25/2018, Article 2 - decision of the Regional Government n.1251/2019.
